Classic Style Sofas & Chairs

A black and white photograph of a man weaving on a loom in a rustic workshop. The man is in profile, focused on his work. The loom is a large, complex mechanical device with many threads. The background is a rough, textured wall. The overall mood is one of traditional craftsmanship.

ALL HARRIS TWEED is woven on a treadle loom at each weaver's home, not all at a mill. the warp and yarns for the weft arrive from the mill, and then the weaver sets to work hand-tying the new yarns to the tail-ends of the previous weave, to make it easier to thread onto the loom.

It is then a matter of steadily weaving the cloth until it is complete

HARRIS TWEED - The Cloth

The rare character and beauty of HARRIS TWEED is attributable to the fact that it is the only fabric produced by traditional methods anywhere in the world.

There are hundreds of distinctive patterns, carefully developed over centuries. Each is unique with the characteristics of subtle designs in complex natural shades that is unmistakably HARRIS TWEED
